MYSTERY OF THE BURDICK CASE

HOW AND WHEN WAS THE MUR-DER COMMITTED?

Ten Hours Between the Time He Was Last Seen and the Discovery of the Bedy -What Happened in Those Ten Hours Is as Much a Mystery Now as It Ever Was BUFFALO, April 5.- Few of those who gerly followed the daily revelations in the Burdick murder case for a month sustained their interest after Justice Murphy gave his finding on the inquest. Most of them seemed content with his state-ment that had Arthur R. Pennell lived, a warrant could have been issued for his arrest. That was the popular end of the chapter. Yet every expert investigator will agree that the heart of the mystery has not been reached at all. No more is known to-day of the direct circumstances of the crime than was known two hours after Edwin L. Burdick's body was found in the smoking room of his home, at 101 Ashland avenue, at 8:30 o'clock on the morning of Friday, Feb. 27.

the discovery. Burdick's head had been beaten in. What happened during those ten hours is so far beyond guessing that no one has yet been able to patch together a theory that will hold water. The District Attorney asked 5,000 questions in his effort to solve the riddle, and the police and the reporters asked twice as many more. The result always was the same: That Maggie Murray saw Burdick, clad in his underclothes, standing in the hall near the door of the den at 10:30 P. M. on Thursday, Feb. 26; that Burdick's body, clad only in an undershirt, was found on the couch in the den the next morning.

When Miss Murray saw him Burdick undoubtedly was on his way from the cellar, where he had shaken the furnace. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Hull, heard him at this work; it was the last sound she heard that night, according to her story. What he did after Miss Murray saw him is not known. It cannot be said with assurance that it was Burdick who prepared the luncheon, fragments of which were found on the table in the den. The tarts and crackers and cheese were food to which he was not partial, and it is not known whether the liquor found in the glass was a part of the bottle of cocktails which he brought home on Thursday evening. Assuming that it was, there yet remains for explanation the disappearance of the bottle and the finding f the paper cover in the bottom of a can of garbage in the yard. All of the houseof the paper cover in the bottom of a can of garbage in the yard. All of the household swore that they did not see the bottle after Burdick placed it in the sideboard, and there is no evidence that he left the house after coming to dinner.

Burdick may have gone to his room after shaking the furnace, or he may have entered the den and fallen asleep. Dr. Marcy, who was the first person to admit finding the body, guessed that Burdick was killed at about midnight. Dr. Howland, the assistant medical examiner, who heard Dr. Marcy's suggestion that Burdick had committed suicide, believes that Burdick was murdered at about 2 o'clock.

Dr. Marcy's conjecture leaves a period of about two hours between the time Miss Murray saw Burdick and the time he was killed, and admits of the theory that Burdick was killed by the famous lone woman who was seen coming from the direction of the Burdick house at 1:10 A. M. Dr. Howland's estimate removes, to a degree, suspicion from this woman. She has never quite disappeared from the calculations of those who pursued the case most diligently, for Patrolman Myers undoubtedly saw her as he stood at the corner north of the Burdick house. If she was innocent of the murder she could have removed some of the fog from the case by a trip to the District Attorney's office, or by a letter to Mr. Coatsworth, and the public would not have been wiser of her identity. That was the promise held out by the authorities, and it brought some results in the way of dispelling useless clues.

If the lone woman did come from the Burdick house there are few now willing to believe that her visit could reflect on the morals of the murdered man, although for days after the crime the city was hot to condemn him for rumored indiscretions that never were proved. That suspicion of morals of the murdered man, although for days after the crime the city was hot to condemn him for rumored indiscretions that never were proved. That suspicion of Burdick was due almost entirely to the appearance of the lunch and the condition of his clothing and, as the suspicion has faded, it becomes harder to understand why he should have been clothed only in a shirt when killed, or, if he wore other garments why the murderer or some other person should have removed them. The drawers bore evidence of having been taken off after the crime and there is the bloodstain on the leg to indicate such removal. They lay, when the police first saw them, across the legs, at the foot of the couch.

moval. They lay, when the police first saw them, across the legs, at the foot of the couch.

It is generally believed now that when Burdick was murdered he wore his underwear, trousers and stockings, just the garments a man who was asleep in his room would put on if he were summoned downstairs by a ring at the bell or a noise alarming him of the presence of a burgiar. That very theory leaves something to be explained. If Burdick was attacked immediately on his appearance in the den, there should have been more bloodstains, yet the pool of blood indicated that, more likely, Burdick had been struck as he lay, awake or asleep, on the couch, and that he scarcely moved. The body was found farther toward the foot of the couch than a living man would lie. It had the appearance of being pulled toward the foot in the removal of clothing, and the fact that the shirt was rolled up under the body almost proves that this was done.

Such were the appearances in the den. Who caused them and why they were caused will always be a legal mystery, it is likely. There may not be a living person who knows the secret of those ten hours. It is almost impossible that more than two persons know, and they will never tell. Four persons may have known; if so, two of them surely will never tell.

VANDERBILT GUESTS BACK.

The Day Spent at Oakland Farm-Bachel

NEWPORT, R. I., April 5 .- The men who came from New York to attend Mr. Vanderbilt's bachelor dinner last night were the guesta to-day of Alfred G. Venderbilt at Oakland Farm at luncheon. They were taken out to the farm in the morning. Mr. Vanderbilt engaged a local orchestra for the occasion, and in the afternoon the entire party posed for a picture. This afternoon the steamer General made a special trip from Wickford, taking the guests to connect with the evening train for New York. or New York.

for New York.

The flowers used at the dinner last night were sent to-day, at Mr. Vanderbilt's orders, to the Newport Hospital. The glasses used last night in drinking the health of the prospective bride and bridegroom were destroyed, being thrown into the fireplace.

NEW FORDHAM HOSPITAL PLANS. J. G. Howard and D. E. Wald the Architects-Will Cost $500,000. John Galen Howard and D. Everett Wald, architects at 156 Fifth avenue, have Wald, architects at 156 Fifth avenue, have been chosen to draw the plans for the new $500.0 0 Fordham Hospital, which the board of trustees of Belle vue and Allied Hospitals are to build. The trustees are now considering several sites, but have not made a selection.

The hospital will be located south of Pelham avenue and west of the Bronx River. It will be four stories high and will accommodate 150 patients. Work will be started in August.

The trustees have also ordered the preparation of plans for an additional $125,000 wing to Gouverneur Hospital, which will give accommodations for sixty more patients

RARE BOOKS TO BE SOLD.

A book sale interesting to many collectors and librarians is on for next week when 424 catalogue lots from the library of Daniel F. Appleton of the Waltham Watch Company are to be sold at auction.
The collection is notable especially for a great number of first editions of the Bible printed in the English language. It contains also a large number of first editions of English and American authors, many of them pronounced very rare.

There is a copy of the first Bible printed in English, Coverdale's translation, which was printed at Antwerp in 1885, "the holy Scripture of the Olde and News Testament, faithfully and truly translated out of Douche and Latyn into Englishe."

There is also Tyndal's Testament, which was the first part of the Bible published in the English tongue: "The Newe Testa-ment dylygently corrected and compared with the Greke by William Tyndal, and with the Greke by William Tyndal, and fynesahed in the yere of oure Lord God 1534, in the moneth of Nouember." This work, for which Tyndal was condemned to the stake, was also printed at Antwerp.

The Cranmer Bible, the first authorised Bible ordered to be read in the churchee, which was printed at London in 1541, in Gothic letter, is here, as is the "Bishop's Bible," or "Treacle Bible," the one in which Jeremiah viii., 22, reads "Is there not treacle at Gliead?"

Another of Mr. Appleton's books is a first edition of the "Breeches Bible," wherein it is written that Adam and Eve when their eyes were opened made for themselves breeches out of the fig tree leaves. Another is the "Koburger Bible" of 1482, with colored initials. There is also an illustrated "Luther Bible" and a first edition in English of the New Testament for the use of Roman Catholics, which was suppressed in England on account of notes which were pronounced treasonable.

There is also a copy of the first publication of the Scriptures in any language in America, the "Eliot Testament," John Eliot's translation of the Scriptures into the Indian tongue, which was printed at Cambridge in 1661, and also the first Bible printed in the English language in America, the "Aitkin Bible," "printed and sold by R. Aitkin at Pope's Head, three above the Coffee House in Market (Philadelphia), 1782."

the Coffee House in Market (Philadelphia), 1782."

Another volume here is the "Wycliffe Bible" and another is the "Parson's Bible," said to be the smallest Bible ever printed.

Among the other rare books in the collection is a copy of "Pauline: A Fragment of a Confession," Browning's first book, published in London in 1833, only eleven copies of which are known; a first edition of Burns, various first editions of William Cullen Bryant's works, first editions of all the cantos of "Don Juan" and a first edition of Lamb's "A Tale of Rosamund Gray and Old Blind Margaret."

Irving, Dickens, Longfellow, Lowell, Keats, Milton, Poe, Shelley, Whittier, Tennyson, Swift and Goldsmith appear among others in first editions, and the catalogue includes many Grolier books and several of William Loring Andrews's publications.

AMEN CORNER DINNER.

There Will Be Three Hundred or More Diners-Comes Itself as a Souvenir.

All kinds of politicians and exponents of about all shades of religious belief, to say nothing of representatives of several schools of medicine and of about all branches of business, will be at the Amen Corner dinner at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, on the night of April 17. A note of acceptance was received yesterday from Gov. Chamberlain of Connecticut, and others came from the Rev. Dr. David J. Burrill of the Marble Collegiate Church and Rabbi Joseph Sil-

The souvenir of the dinner this year has been decided on. It is the joint product of H. D. Webster of the Art Students' League H. D. Webster of the Art Students' League and Artist McGill. The clay bas relief was approved at the last meeting of the corporation. It shows a classic representation of the corner in the hotel, made from the artist's sketches, surmounted by the words "Amen Corner," done in simple lettering, and about it are emblems of good cheer fantastically arranged. It will be reproduced in half-tone on board.

In addition to several United States Senators and members of the Cabinet about tors and members of the Cabinet about three hundred frequenters of the corner have accepted invitations to the dinner. Among them are Gen. Howard Carroll, Bird S Coler, John F. Carroll, J. Sloat Fassett, Fred S. Gibbs, Col. George W. Dunn, ex-Senator Hiscock, Edward Lauterbach, Senator P. H. McCarren, Frank H. Platt, Collector Stranahan, President Louis Stern of the Republican Club, former Lieutenant-Governor Timothy L. Woodruff, Norman S. Dike, Gherardi Davis and James S. Clarkson.

GUGGENHEIMER ENTERTAINS.

No Politics in It, but All the Same His Guests Hall Him for Mayor.

About six hundred of "the people of the East Side" were the guests of Randolph Guggenheimer in New Irving Hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Guggenheimer, in a short speech, explained that he intended to give several entertainments in different parts of the city, and that their object was neither political nor sectarian.

political nor sectarian.

"Three cheers for Guggenheimer for Mayor!" cried half a dozen voices in the crowd, and the entire audience took it up.

The entertainment consisted of vocal and instrumental selections, fancy dancing, recitations and a scene from "The School for Scandal." Each number on the programme was loudly applauded.

After the entertainment a luncheon was served. During this groups of various types of many nationalities discussed politics with the name of Guggenheimer mentioned often and enthusiastically.

POLISHING FLUID EXPLODED. Girl and Her Stepmother Burned-Besoue by a Younger Child.

Jennie Gross, 16 years old, and her step-mother, Henrietta Gross, were badly burned yesterday morning in their home on the fourth floor of a five-story tenement, at 635 Sixth street. The girl was cleaning a stove, using a polishing fluid which is thought to have contained bensine. She thought to have contained benzine. She got too near a lighted gas stove and the polishing cloth caught fire. The flames spread to the girl's dress and to the can of polish, which exploded.

The stepmother tried to put out the blaze, but her own clothing caught fire. A younger child, Amelia, wrapped a big comfortable around both women and put the fire out.

MISS ROOSEYELT'S RETURN.

COMPANIONS TELL OF HER WELCOME IN PORTO RICO.

The People More Than Hospitable—Visited Many of the Schools—Got a Present of a Handkerchief in Drawnwork -Meets a Windstorm Coming Home.

Porto Rico on the Coamo on Saturday night, was able to leave the ship at 90'clock yesterday morning when it had come up from the lower bay and docked at the Columbia Stores, Brooklyn. As soon as she learned in the lower bay that the ship could not and until morning Miss Roosevelt sent a wireless message to her uncle, Douglas Robinson of 422 Madison avenue, announcing her arrival and telling him of the delay. Charles A. Cone, Mr. Robinson's secretary, met her at the wharf yesterday morning. Miss Roosevelt was enthusiastic over her trip. She said she was kept busy every

She visited many of the schools on the island and at one she got as a present a fine handkerchief of drawnwork, which can be prized as one of the most valued sounvenirs of her trip. During her tour of the island she visited Cayey, Guayama, Aguirre, Ponce, Yuaco, Quanica, Mayaguez and Aguadilla, and a large part of the journey was made on horseback.

She sailed from New York on March 14. The Coamo left San Juan on last Tuesday, and Miss Roosevelt, the passengers said, got a big send-off. The Governor and most of the population of San Juan were down at the wharf. Two brass bands played and a German and an Italian gunboat fired a salute. The weather was good until Friday, when the boat ran into the teeth of a bad windstorm.

"But Miss Roosevelt," said Capt. Sar-geant, "is a fine sailor."
Miss Roosevelt was driven from the wharf to her uncle's house. Before she got into the carriage she sent for the captain to bid him good-by. She left last night for Wash-ington.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S CRUISE.

Notwithstanding the Bad Weather, the Children Had a Glorious Time. Washington, April 5.—Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by her children, reached the White House this afternoon from a week's cruise on the Potomac River, Chesa-peake Bay and lower waters. The worst weather experienced this spring attended weather experienced this spring attended the party on their trip, but a glorious time is reported by the children, and Mrs. Roose-velt looks much rested from having been shut off from all responsibility for a week. Gloves for Women

WE are sure that no other admirer of Victoria Gloves has been half so hard to convince, of the fact, that no better kid gloves than these can be made, than we have been, ourselves.

We are very certain that there are thousands of women in New York who would willingly pay $2.50 for their gloves if they knew that better ones could be secured for that additional cost. We have had this thought in mind for a year or more, and have searched far and wide among all the best glove-makers abroad to see if it were not possible to secure choicer skins, and better glove-making, but nowhere have we found a glove-maker who could excel the Victoria, and the manufacturer of the Victoria insists that he does not know a possible improvement in glove-

As to choicer skins and more careful selection, he insists that every skin that goes into Victoria gloves is the very finest and choicest from a very careful selection from the best French-tanned skins. Each one is picked now as the choicest of the choice, until there is no longer any possible preference among the skins used

The glove-making is done by the very best experts in France. The shapes, the sewing, the decorative stitching-every point is the finest known in glove-making; and when we say that Victoria Gloves are the best gloves made in the world at any price, we are absolutely certain that the statement is true.

The new lines that have arrived for Easter wear are fresh, soft and delightful, as only absolutely new gloves can be. There are exactly seventy-four color-variations, including black and white, which give a variety that enables you to secure perfect harmony for your Easter gown.

The Kid Gloves are in three styles of overseam and two styles of pique stitching. Price $1.85 a pair.

There are also three styles of overseam Suede Victoria Gloves at $1.75 a pair, and two styles of Pique Suede Gloves at
